

A large, dense table with multiple columns and rows, containing numerical data and possibly categorical labels. The table is organized into several distinct sections or groups of columns.